Rethinking Economics Switzerland

We are looking for a new national coordinator of Rethinking Economics Switzerland.

Interested in a new way of teaching economics? In getting to know professors and students who share a critical mindset on economics?

Then apply to this interesting position where you can contribute to improving how the discipline is taught in universities and expand your knowledge on different economic schools.

Rethinking Economics Switzerland is a network connecting the different RE groups present on the Swiss territory: RE Geneva, RE Lucerne, RE Lugano, RE Lausanne and Plurale Ökonomik Zürich.

The main goals of Rethinking Economics Switzerland are to:

- Promote economic pluralism and promote changes in research and in education of the economic science by allowing different schools of thought to integrate them and other social sciences to contribute.
- Introduce the public and students to a variety of approaches in economics and equip them with tools to critically evaluate these approaches and real-world economics.
- Democratize the access to economics by making economic knowledge more widely available.

You will work in tandem with another national coordinator and share together many of the tasks and projects.

Your main tasks will consist of:

- Fundraising
- Organisation of events
- Social media
- Writing reports

Your profile:

- Strong interest in different theories in economics and adherence to the objectives of Rethinking Economics Switzerland
- Good project management skills
- Good knowledge of English and another national language (FR, IT or DE).

As the association currently doesn’t have enough resources to fund the position, it is a volunteering activity, which would take around 10% of your time.

Please write us an e-mail describing who you are and why you would be motivated to join Rethinking Economics by March 6th 2020.

We look forward to hearing from you soon!😊
